A Radical Letter on North Carolina Politics and Public Men.

A strange medley of nonsense and falsehood, a combination of pretended ignorance and malicious misstatement, respecting North Carolina politics, is the Washington letter to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, given in the News to-day.

This "intelligent correspondent" at the National Capital appears to have North Carolina politics in his own special keeping, since, upon that topic, he is frequently found in other Northern Radical papers besides the Inter-Ocean; but in nothing that has emanated from his pen has he been found so entirely original as on this occasion.

This is the most remarkable letter, indeed, ever read in North Carolina. There is absolutely not a single correct statement in it from beginning to end, save and except the allusion to the election of Judge Merrimon to the Senate. Yet it is apparent that the fellow is not ignorant of the subject upon which he writes, for independent of the fact that the letters of this correspondent are known to be inspired from Greensboro, it is plain throughout that he purposely misstates facts. No man in the world who ever heard of Governor Vance and Judge Merrimon could write so much about either without stumbling upon some truth in recounting the incidents of their public lives.

Opening with the complexion of the General Assembly, the figures given are a willful perversion. The relative political strength of parties has been published by all the papers of the State. It is well known that there is but one elected as a National, the member of the House from Cabarrus, who, however, is pronounced as good a Democrat as any member of either House. This correspondent sets down fourteen as doubtful, while it is well known that there is not a member elect of the Legislature whose politics are much a matter of doubt. There are less than a dozen elected as Independents, but, with one or two exceptions, they are all Democrats, and were voted for as gentlemen of the simple pure Democratic faith. These facts were all accessible to the Washington correspondent, and he could not have made or invented his figures, unless he had the actual facts before him.

Respecting the two prominent gentlemen discussed, this letter writer will provoke a broad grin throughout the State. It will be news to hear that Judge Merrimon was on the bench for life at the beginning of the war, and that Governor Vance was an original secessionist. He was known in his Congressional district as a Union man, uncompromising to the last hour of discussion on the subject, and in April, 1861, was making a Union speech in the district that had just elected him to Congress, when a copy of President Lincoln's requisition on North Carolina for her quota of seventy-five thousand troops to subdue the seceding States was handed up to him. He threw up his hands, saying "this puts an end to the matter," and, stepping down from the stand, left his speech half spoken. He soon raised a company, became Colonel of his regiment, and in 1862 was elected Governor of the State, re-elected in 1864, and so he was Governor at the close of the war, but never a Major General.

Judge Merrimon, early in the war, received a Captain's commission and did duty in the Quartermaster's department until elected Solicitor of the Buncombe District, a position he continued to hold throughout the period of the war. He was elected a Judge under the State Government set on foot by President Johnson in 1865, and made an able and upright Judge. He resigned in 1867, because he would not obey an insolent military order of General Sickles of the United States Army.

But political preference in North Carolina is not now dependent upon Union or Secession records; only a man who was not considered true to his State, after the issues of Union and Secession gave way as dead issues to the live lamentable issues of actual war, stands not much in the way of promotion. Always a Union State, a large majority of the people of North Carolina were Union men until Lincoln's administration drove them into war against the Union in attempting to drag them into war against the States of the Southern sisterhood. Whatever his sentiments respecting the Union, no true man of the State felt called upon to betray his side in the contest, and no man esteemed worthy of public consideration here did so. It does not detract from a gentleman in North Carolina that he was a Union man, but it is fatal to political aspirations that he was an enemy to his neighbors and people. North Carolina soldiers grew eloquent over the old Union around their camp fires at night, and by day fought heroically for the integrity of Southern soil and in vindication of Southern manhood.

The Democratic party selected Judge Merrimon as its candidate for Governor in 1873, but no such issue as is alluded to by this correspondent was raised or could have been raised for or against him in the party. Governor Vance was then laboring under the disabilities which kept him from the seat on the floor of the Senate to which he had been two years before elected. Relieved in time, he would have been the nominee for Governor beyond all question; as he was found to be still the unanimous choice in 1876 when he was free to run. If Judge Merrimon had ever been known to be what this correspondent would falsely make him, he would not have been a Democratic nominee in 1872, or hereafter in the near future.

Fortunately for the people of North Carolina, they know more about their affairs, and better understand their business, than Radical correspondents of Northern newspapers. They know who was true and who false or indifferent to them in the dark days of the war, and the effort is an idle one to instruct them now. They know where Judge Merrimon stood, and they know where Governor Vance stood throughout the contest, and the revamping of the Radical campaign lies of 1876 against the latter will have no more effect now than then. All these blockade charges, insinuations and questions were met, answered and refuted then, and they are the merest trumpery now. But who is it that again brings them forward? Respecting the Executive letter books stolen from the archives of the State, the correspondent betrays the familiarity of an interested looker on. The Legislature, as he knows, by resolution, called for the State's records, which resolutions the Governor communicated. They are not wanted for any purpose of the Senatorial contest, but as the property of the State, yes "a sovereign State," and as such she will yet have them. But that they should be wanted by Governor Vance because "that among these documents lies the evidence of his fidelity to the Confederacy," and that he desires them for such use before a North Carolina jury of the public, or even a jury of the Legislature in this State, is a proposition as preposterous as the statement is ludicrous.

The News desires to avoid any further discussion of the Senatorial question in its columns, and therefore leaves unsaid much that naturally suggests itself in connection with this letter elsewhere published, which is well worth the careful perusal and study of the intelligent readers to whom it is herewith submitted.

What Will They do With It?

The Republican Executive Committee of this District, it is announced, will meet in this city, to-day, for the purpose of taking action as to the Congressional contest in this District. In other words, it is to determine whether it will bring out a candidate of its own or invite a Convention of the party for that purpose; or whether it will endorse one of the two "Brindle-tails" now in the field, and, if so, which one; or whether it will take no action at all but leave the contest as it stands and as they find it. The dilemma in which these gentry are involved is a peculiar and delicate one, and its solution will be expected with curious interest.

To nominate a candidate of their own, after the late services of Turner and Bledsoe in behalf of the party, as exhibited in the Orange and Wake campaigns, would be to "go back" upon these patriots in a most ungrateful and irresponsible manner. To refuse to meet their amorous advances in a spirit of equal effusiveness would argue a painful degree of insensibility. Verily, the Radical Executive Committee find themselves in the awkward condition of the susceptible swain who, embarrassed by the presence of two sweet-hearts, was constrained to exclaim:

"How happy I could be with either;—

We are prepared to predict, however, that the perplexed Committee will take no action, in one sense, while, in another, they will be meditating very decided action. Mark our vaticination, which, if falsified, will only show that the best-founded speculations are sometimes at fault: Bledsoe will soon be withdrawn from the turf; the impression will be created that Turner, if he has not the endorsement of the party, will not be antagonized by it; and at the last moment, if it appears that Turner is likely to seduce any number of Democrats to his support, and thereby render the election of a Radical possible, a Republican candidate will be brought out and instructions be issued to support him. We all know that the negroes can be compacted, at a moment's notice, to do the bidding of the white wire-pullers and leaders.

This little game will not do, however. The Democrats of this District are too sternly alive, we trust and believe, to the absolute and vital importance of saving the next Congress, too profoundly and earnestly impressed with the magnitude of the interests at stake,—to be blinded either by Radical deceptions or by the glare of false lights held out by a selfish and treacherous man. A vote for Josiah Turner, whether a Republican candidate is put in the field or not, is a vote against Democratic success in the District,—a vote against Democratic ascendancy in the next House of Representatives,—a possible vote for Grant for President in 1880!

Political Imagery.

We thought that it had been reserved for Dennis Kearney, the California blatherskite, to exhaust the vocabulary of slang and the resources of vulgar metaphor. His array of epithets and invectives has been something fearful to contemplate and has put to the blush the traditions of Fishmarket billingsgate.

Mr. Blaine, however, has come to the front with a few slang utterances, in a recent colloquy with a Chicago newspaper man, which, if not up to the standard of Senatorial dignity or down to the level of Kearney vulgarity, are, for instance, he is reported as having said that "Conkling had as good a chance of securing a nomination for the Presidency as a pig would have of going to heaven in a wheelbarrow on the back of a hurricane!" This is certainly very strong language, and we are indebted to the witty critic of the Louisville Journal for an analysis thereof. Though the pig is a worthy animal, having often been sacrificed to the gods in ancient times, and having thus been presumptively borne to heaven on the wings of the wind, (rather than the back of the hurricane,) we do not read in any writings, sacred or profane, that a wheelbarrow was at any time employed in the process of transportation. Therefore—and we desire to call public attention seriously to this point—the circumstance of the wheelbarrow makes it absolutely certain that a pig, though offered upon the altar itself, could not reach the destination specified upon the vehicle in question. It follows, pari passu, that Blaine intended his remark to signify, not merely the resemblance of Conkling to a juvenile swine, i. e., the pig, but that his purpose was to convey, in as decided a manner as possible, his belief that, if Conkling's meditated course of travel lies in the direction of the White House, or even heaven, to say, is impracticable. There is food for reflection in an opinion so positive and an illustration so unique from such a source. It now behooves Conkling to show, if he dare, or if he can, either that the pig has a fair chance of reaching Heaven in a wheelbarrow upon the back of a hurricane, or else that there is no resemblance between himself and the pig under those exceptional conditions!

The political outlook just at the present moment is not very pleasant for the Radicals. Elections have been held so far this year in a number of States, and Vermont, Rhode Island and New Hampshire are the only ones which they have succeeded in carrying, and in these even they have only succeeded by reduced majorities. On the other hand the Democrats redeemed Oregon and carried North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Arkansas, and in every instance by largely increased majorities. In New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island the Democrats had no expectation of winning, and have made no particular exertion, yet in every instance reduced, and in Vermont the Republicans were compelled to submit to the loss of a Congressman. The only really close contest of the year was fought in Oregon, and there the Democrats won easily, electing their men to every office worth having. In the other Democratic States the Radicals, as they had previously announced, made no organized opposition, and Democrats carried the day by majorities increased by fifty to seventy-five per cent., while in Republican States, under conditions practically similar, but in favor of the Radicals, the majorities were everywhere reduced.

Death of R. L. Myers, Esq.

Through a private source we learn of the death of R. L. Myers, Esq., of Washington, N. C., which occurred on Thursday evening last. Mr. Myers was about 62 years of age, and has been, since manhood, identified with the town of Washington and the people of that section. He was a man of irreproachable character and integrity, and possessed in an eminent degree the confidence and esteem of the people of his town and section. His business habits were strict and systematic, and he controlled a large business influence, and was at the time of his death the senior member of the largest business shipping house of the town. He was for many years its Mayor and was always ready to make any sacrifice to promote the interests and welfare of his citizens. His loss will be sorely felt, and the community in which he lived will long remember his worth and influence.

The Democratic party is the only party that offers a steady and consistent promise of reform. If it come into power, we shall flounder about for a while in a sort of chaos, to fall at last into the iron embraces of Grantism. On the result of the pending canvass, the final issue will mainly depend. If the Democratic party loses the next House of Representatives, God help us. We shall indeed be at the mercy of jobbers and despots, with never a rudder or compass to guide us. Let the people of the Fourth Congressional District think of these things!

Secretary of the Navy Thompson has made up his mind, it is said, to speak a few times in the Indiana Republican canvass. One of his admirers is quoted as saying of him: "For the first four hours there is not a better speaker in the land, but after that he gets a little scattering." Probably the audience scatters, too, by that time.

Mr. Toots, in Dickens' "Dombey and Son," was in the habit of writing letters to himself and then answering them. Gen. Butler is the only statesman who ever spontaneously nominated himself for Governor and addressed to himself a formal letter of acceptance. Jo. Turner and Bledsoe have both nominated themselves for Congress, but their letters of acceptance are not yet forthcoming.

The Chicago Tribune speaks enthusiastically and hopefully of binding the Republican party firmly together with "hooks of steel." A good deal of "hooking" and "stealing" has been going on in that party for a number of years.

Gen. Lew. Wallace has just been appointed, by the President, Governor of New Mexico. Wallace aided in the Florida returning board frauds, and it is one of the features of Civil Service Reform to provide for all who helped to falsify and reverse the result of the Presidential election.

BEAUTY:

OR THE

Secret of a Fair Face

AN ITEM OF INTEREST TO EVERY LADY WHO DESIRES TO BE MORE BEAUTIFUL THAN SHE NOW IS.

Unfortunately not one woman in a hundred, subjected to the whims of an American climate, possesses that basis and starting point of real beauty—a pure and clear complexion. What nature has thus denied, art must be called upon to furnish.

It can be done; it is done daily. Prof. W. E. Hagan placed beauty within the reach of every untried daughter of Eve when he discovered that surprising article known in fashionable circles as the true secret of beauty, and called

MAGNOLIA

BALM

The MAGNOLIA BALM is a sure device for curing a skin disease, and making a complexion clear and beautiful. It conceals all natural blemishes in the most surprising and effective manner. It removes all roughness, eruptions, redness, blotches, freckles, and tan with magical power.

It drives away all evidences of fatigue and excitement. It makes the plainest face beautiful. It gives the complexion a dazzling purity and makes the neck, face, and arms appear graceful, round, and plump.

It makes a matron of 35 or 40 look not more than 20 years old, and changes the rustic maiden into a cultivated city belle. The Magnolia Balm removes all blemishes and conceals every drawback to beauty; and while it is as harmless as water, it is so like in its effects that the closest observer cannot detect its use.

Ladies who want to make themselves attractive, make an absolute certainty of it by using HAGAN'S MAGNOLIA BALM, and we know of no other way. It is the cheapest preparation in the world, all things considered, and may be had at any drug store.

XANTHINE'S GREAT

GERMAN HAIR RESTORATIVE

(From Rev. W. W. Bennett, D. D., Senior Editor Richmond Christian Advocate.)
I have tried the Xanthine, and found it to be excellent in restoring hair to its natural color and preventing its falling out. W. W. BENNETT.

(From Rev. Mr. Cameron, Minister of the Presbyterian Church South.)
Mossy Creek, Tenn., August 22, 1876.
Xanthine Co., Richmond, Va.:
I have used the Xanthine for now for three years, and have induced others to try it, and have never known it to fail in accomplishing all you claim for it. It is an excellent tonic to a pleasant dressing, removing and preventing dandruff and all unpleasant itching, promoting and preserving the natural growth and color of the hair, and rendering it glossy and pliable. I confidently and cheerfully recommend it. I AM CAMERON.
